Forward-Looking Statements

Except for the historical information contained herein, the matters discussed in this presentation are forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended. Terms such as “aim,” “anticipate,” “believe,” “confidence,” “contemplate,” “continue,” “conviction,” “could,” “drive,” “estimate,” “expect,” “forecast,” “future,” “goal,” “guidance,” “intend,” “likely,” “may,” “might,” “objective,” “opportunity,” “optimistic,” “outlook,” “plan,” “position,” “potential,” “predict,” “project,” “seek,” “should,” “strategy,” “target,” “will,” “would” or similar statements or variations of such words and other similar expressions are intended to identify forward-looking statements, although not all forward-looking statements contain such terms. Forward-looking statements are based upon our current expectations, estimates and assumptions and involve risks and uncertainties that change over time; actual results could differ materially from those predicted by such forward-looking statements. These risks and uncertainties include, but are not limited to: significant competition in all aspects of our business; our ability to grow the size and profitability of our audience and subscriber base; our dependence on third-party platforms for attracting, retaining and monetizing a significant portion of our users and for our ability to maintain and grow our licensing revenues; our dependence on user and other metrics that are subject to inherent challenges in measurement; numerous factors that affect our advertising revenues, including market dynamics, evolving digital advertising trends and the evolution of our strategy; the risks and challenges associated with investments we make in new and existing products and services; damage to our brand or reputation from negative perceptions or publicity or otherwise; risks associated with generative artificial intelligence technology; economic, market and political conditions or other events or conditions; risks associated with the international scope of our business and foreign operations; significant disruptions in our newsprint supply chain or newspaper printing and distribution channels or a significant increase in the costs to print and distribute our newspaper; risks associated with expectations relating to governance, environmental and social matters, and any related reporting obligations; risks associated with acquisitions, divestitures, investments and other strategic transactions; risks associated with litigation or governmental investigations; our ability to protect our intellectual property; claims against us of intellectual property infringement; our ability to improve and scale our technical and data infrastructure; security incidents and other network and information systems disruptions; our ability to comply with evolving laws and regulations with respect to privacy, data protection and consumer marketing and subscriptions practices; payment processing risk; our dependence on continued and unimpeded access to the internet and cloud-based hosting services we utilize; risks associated with attracting and maintaining a highly talented workforce; the impact of labor negotiations and collective bargaining agreements; potential limits on our operating flexibility due to the fixed nature of our employee-related and printing and distribution costs; the effects of the size and volatility of our pension plan obligations; liabilities that may result from our participation in multiemployer pension plans; our ability to meet our publicly announced guidance and/or targets; the effects of restrictions on our operations as a result of the terms of our credit facility; potential limits on our future access to capital markets and other financing options; and the concentration of control of our company due to our dual-class capital structure.

More information regarding these risks and uncertainties and other important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those in the forward-looking statements is set forth in the Company’s filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission, including its Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2025, and subsequent filings. Investors are cautioned not to place undue reliance on any such forward-looking statements, which speak only as of the date they are made. The Company undertakes no obligation to publicly update or revise any forward-looking statement, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise.

Non-GAAP Financial Measures

This presentation refers to certain non-GAAP financial measures, including adjusted operating profit, defined as operating profit before depreciation, amortization, severance, multiemployer pension plan withdrawal costs and special items; adjusted operating profit margin, defined as adjusted operating profit divided by revenues; adjusted operating costs, defined as operating costs before depreciation, amortization, severance, multiemployer pension plan withdrawal costs and special items; adjusted diluted EPS, defined as diluted EPS excluding amortization of acquired intangible assets, severance, non-operating retirement costs and special items; and free cash flow, defined as net cash provided by operating activities less capital expenditures. Refer to the appendix for reconciliations to the most comparable GAAP financial measures. Certain guidance is provided on a non-GAAP basis and not reconciled to the most directly comparable GAAP measure because we are unable to provide, without unreasonable effort, a calculation or estimation of amounts necessary for such reconciliation due to the inherent difficulty of forecasting such amounts.

The sum of individual metrics may not always equal total amounts indicated due to rounding.

Total subscription revenues grew 11.3% year-over-year as growth from digital was partially offset by print declines

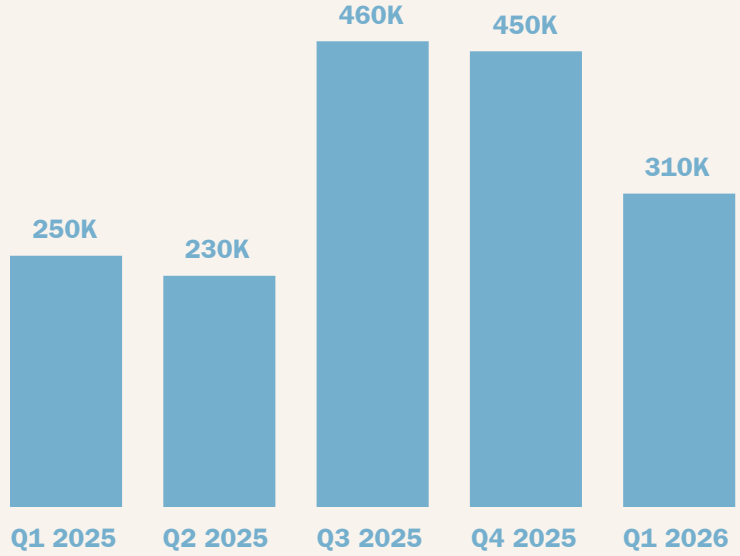

The New York Times Company

The Company added approximately 310K digital-only net new subscribers in the first quarter, bringing the total subscriber count to 13.08 million

Total subscribers

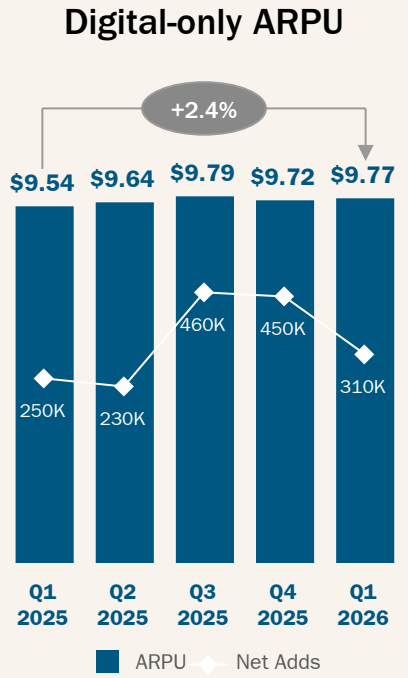

Digital-only subscriber net adds[1]

(1) As of the second quarter of 2025, includes subscribers related to family subscriptions. Each family subscription is priced higher than a comparable individual subscription and is counted as one billed subscriber and one additional subscriber to reflect the additional entitlements in these subscriptions. Subscribers (including net subscriber additions) are rounded to the nearest ten thousand.

The New York Times Company

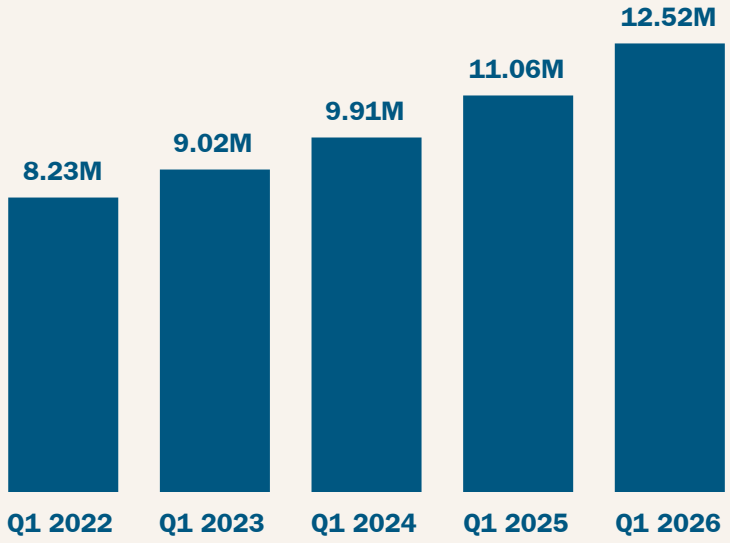

Digital-only ARPU grew 2.4% year-over-year

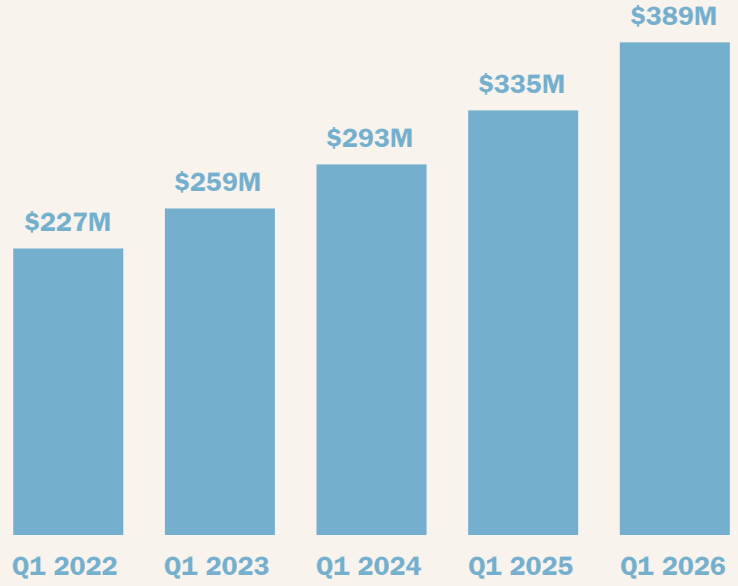

Subscribers (including net subscriber changes) are rounded to the nearest ten thousand.
Average Revenue Per User or "ARPU," a metric we calculate to track the revenue generation of our digital-only subscriber base, represents the average revenue per digital-only subscriber over a 28-day billing cycle during the applicable quarter.

The Company continued to scale its digital-only subscriber base and grow digital-only subscription revenues

The Company continued to generate strong free cash flow and aims to return at least 50% of free cash flow to shareholders over the mid-term

(1) The One Big Beautiful Bill Act ("OBBBA") resulted in lower cash tax payments of $65 million for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2025. The Company expects lower cash tax payments of approximately $60 million in total for the fiscal year ending December 31, 2026, and does not expect the majority of this cash flow benefit from the OBBBA to recur beyond fiscal 2026. Net cash provided by operating activities in 2025 was impacted by lower cash tax payments due to the impact of the OBBBA, and also included net proceeds of approximately $33 million in connection with the lease and subsequent sale of approximately four acres of excess land at our printing and distribution facility in College Point, N.Y., which was finalized in February 2025.
Last twelve months (LTM) represents performance covering the preceding 12 months relative to the last day of the quarter.
Free cash flow is a non-GAAP financial measure defined as net cash provided by operating activities, as reported, less capital expenditures. See the appendix for more information, including a reconciliation to the most comparable GAAP measure.

The New York Times Company's second quarter 2026 guidance

Below is the Company's guidance for revenues and adjusted operating costs for the second quarter of 2026 compared with the second quarter of 2025

	Q2 2026 Guidance
Digital-only subscription revenues	increase 14 - 17%
Total subscription revenues	increase 10 - 12%
Digital advertising revenues	increase high-teens
Total advertising revenues	increase high-single-digits
Affiliate, licensing and other revenues	increase low-single-digits
Adjusted operating costs	increase 8 - 9%

The Company expects the following on a pre-tax basis in 2026:
Depreciation and amortization	approximately $80 - $85 million (includes $25 - $30 million of acquired intangible assets amortization)
Interest income and other, net	approximately $40 - $45 million
Capital expenditures	approximately $35 - $45 million

Adjusted operating costs is a non-GAAP financial measure. See the appendix for more information. Certain guidance is provided on a non-GAAP basis and not reconciled to the most directly comparable GAAP measure because we are unable to provide, without unreasonable effort, a calculation or estimation of amounts necessary for such reconciliation due to the inherent difficulty of forecasting such amounts.

Appendix

Reconciliation of operating profit to adjusted operating profit and adjusted operating profit margin

We define adjusted operating profit as operating profit, as reported, before depreciation and amortization, severance, multiemployer pension plan withdrawal costs and special items. Adjusted operating profit margin is defined as adjusted operating profit expressed as a percentage of revenues.

	First Quarter		% Change
($ in thousands)	2026	2025	2026 vs. 2025

(1) First quarter 2026 and first quarter 2025 results included as a special item litigation-related costs in connection with certain lawsuits alleging unlawful and unauthorized copying and use of the Company's journalism and other content in connection with the development of generative artificial intelligence products ("Generative AI Litigation Costs"). Management determined to report Generative AI Litigation Costs as a special item beginning in the first quarter of 2024 because, unlike other litigation expenses, the Generative AI Litigation Costs arise from discrete, complex and unusual proceedings and do not, in management's view, reflect the Company's ongoing business operational performance.
